The Jean Monnet Center of Excellence (JMCE) public forum brings together scholars and practitioners to discuss topics of high salience in the EU and the US. This program focuses on "Understanding Gender Inequality: Views from the EU, US, and UK" and will bring together academics, practitioners, and the community to discuss how governments are addressing gender inequality through legislative actions. The public panel will discuss policy on gender inequality from both sides of the Atlantic, examining similarities and differences in approaches, accomplishments, and areas where progress still needs to be made.
