LAND ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I acknowledge that for thousands of years the area now comprising the state of Florida has been and continues to be home to many Native Nations. I further recognize that the main campus of the University of Florida is in the heartland territory of two historically-known Native societies –those of the Potano and of the Alachua Seminole. As a part of our current stewardship, I acknowledge my obligation to honor the ancestral, present, and future land rights of Indigenous peoples (originally crafted by UF Libraries/edited slightly by me).

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Contemporary theory with focus on common themes among academic disciplines. Since feminist theory is by its very nature interdisciplinary, this course is designed to acquaint students with some foundational feminist theory—in texts—across the disciplines: philosophy, art history, literary studies, sociology, anthropology, the sciences. By “foundational” I mean feminist thought which has been influential in shaping academic feminist scholarship since the so-called “second wave” of United States and European feminism, beginning (roughly) in the late 1940s and moving up to the present. This class relies heavily on your participation in in-class discussions, thoroughly and meaningfully engaging the readings, and thoughtfully building an embodied understanding of what “advanced” feminist theory is, feels like, tastes like, and acts like. We will focus on the fissures, excesses, and undersides of what could be, is, and should be “feminist theory”.

COURSE GOALS

- Identify key arguments, theories, and debates of contemporary feminist theory
- Apply a feminist theoretical framework in weekly experiments

- Explain how feminist theory always intersects with power as well as race, gender, and other intersections of identity
- Learn how communities of color and communities from (settler and post and de-) colonial contexts have always created practices of resisting harmful power structures

REQUIRED TEXTBOOKS

Lowie Lisa. 2015. The Intimacies of Four Continents. Durham: Duke University Press.

COURSE ASSIGNMENTS

WEEKLY KEYWORD DEFINITIONS due Monday by midnight before every class (30% of final grade)

WRITTEN: 1 page single-spaced answering the following questions:

- What is your previous knowledge of this/these keywords?
- What (with citation) did you learn from the readings this week about this/these keyword/s?
- How did the author(s) use, define, play with this/these keyword/s?
- What concrete example can you connect this/these keyword/s to? (please spend the most time answering this question)?

READING PRESENTATIONS (35% of final grade)

Presentation Guidelines:

Select one week's readings. Prepare with me to lead 45 minutes of the class. These are not solo presentations. Please plan ahead and book two office hours appointments (ideally consecutively) with me the week before so that we may collaboratively plan and discuss the readings.

Presentation options:

1. Create a guided set of quotes from each piece and lead us through the quotes by reading them out loud to us. Pause often to share insights and other medium of material to connect with the readings: audio, visual, etc. Please send this to me ahead of time and I will distribute to the class and have at least a few hard copies for folks who need them.
2. Select a section/sections you want to critically analyze and prepare a presentation that guides us towards your argument.

WEEKLY EXPERIMENTS due every week by Sunday at midnight (35% of the final grade):

Every week we will be performing curated experiments with theories. These experiments are meant to be playful and create an opportunity to connect with one another with and across our interpretations and embodiments of theory.

FINAL ASSIGNMENT: 1,500-2,000 WORD STATEMENT OF SOLIDARITY

Due: May 2nd by midnight to canvas

March 1: topic and 7-10 annotated bibliographic sources due to me via Canvas

April 1: sharing draft of solidarity statement with one another. Must incorporate comments in your final draft.

(25% of the final grade):

For the final paper in this course, we will deviate from a traditional paper and instead write a statement of solidarity. Statements of solidarity are more common in these chaotic, tumultuous times. I would encourage you to think across multiple mediums of communicating and be as specific as possible in your solidarity statement. Who are you in solidarity with? Why? What historical conditions have led you to claim this solidarity? How can you explain theory in an accessible way to connect powerful institutions and everyday dynamics of power? What does solidarity mean for you or the group/ideology/etc you are claiming solidarity with?

ATTENDANCE POLICY, CLASS EXPECTATIONS, AND MAKE-UP POLICY

ATTENDANCE

Attendance for this course is required. Please inform me advance if you anticipate an absence. Should you fall ill or experience something else that results in an absence, please just communicate this to me. I am more than happy to meet with you outside of class time to discuss what you missed and support you in any way I can with regards to finishing the assignments etc.

MAKE-UP POLICY

You must email me when you miss an assignment with a stated date within the email when you will have it completed. At most, you will have one week to complete the assignment and submit it to me via email. I will not accept the first 8 weeks of assignments after week 9.

CLASS EXPECTATIONS

- No Blame: We agree not to blame ourselves or others for the misinformation we have learned, but to accept responsibility for not repeating misinformation after we have learned otherwise.
- Respect: We agree to listen respectfully to each other without interruptions. Only one person speaks at a time.
- Individual Experience: We agree that no one should be required or expected to speak for their whole race or gender. We can't, even if we wanted to.
- Trust: We will trust that people are always doing the best they can. Everyone has come to the table to learn, grow, and share.
- Share the Air: Share responsibility for including all voices in the discussion. If you have a tendency to dominate discussions, take a step back and help the group invite others to speak. If you tend to stay quiet, challenge yourself to share ideas so others can learn from you.
- Not Experts: The facilitators are not experts. They are here to help facilitate the process.
- Ask for help: It's okay not to know. Keep in mind that we are all still learning and are bound to make mistakes when approaching a complex task or exploring new ideas. Be open to changing your mind, and make space for others to do so as well.

CONSIDER ADDING A (SECOND) MAJOR IN WOMEN'S STUDIES!

Do you want to learn about issues of diversity, power, equity, and justice and gain the scholarly knowledge and skills to change the world? Adding the Women's Studies major can deepen your critical thinking, analysis, and skills in intersectional feminist approaches to studying and transforming gender, race, class, sexualities and other systems of power. The Women's Studies major shows graduate schools and employers that you bring advanced knowledge and skills about diversity and equity issues. The 30-credit Women's Studies major consists of four core courses and six electives. It's simple to combine with another major, and up to 15 credits can double count with another degree (English, Psychology, and Sociology in particular have many courses that can double count). It's also the perfect complement to pre-health studies. Contact the Center undergraduate coordinator to make an appointment to discuss adding the major.

ACCOMMODATIONS

If you would prefer to be called by a different name and/or gender pronoun than what appears on the enrollment record, please let me know and I'll be happy to oblige.

Students with disabilities who experience learning barriers and would like to request academic accommodations should connect with the Disability Resource Center by visiting their Get Started page. It is important for students to share their accommodation letter with their instructor and discuss their access needs, as early as possible in the semester.

FOOD INSECURITY AT UF

A person experiences food insecurity when they are unable to access healthy, nutritious food. Food insecurity encompasses both the quantity and nutritional quality of food. Food insecurity can be experienced for short periods of time but can also be experienced over an extended period. College students experience food insecurity in many ways - some examples include: hunger causing distraction while studying or in class, choosing to avoid exercise due to personally inadequate diet, choosing between buying textbooks and groceries while waiting on financial aid, or only being able to afford ramen.

The Alan and Cathy Hitchcock Field & Fork Food Pantry serves members of the UF community experiencing food insecurity. We are open to everyone in the UF community, regardless of income, class, race, gender, housing status, or ability. We do not ask for verification of need - we only ask that you bring your Gator 1 card.

Guests may shop up to two times per week either by placing an online order or by taking a pre-made to-go bag. We are currently limited to our COVID-19 operations due to staff shortages. We are working to achieve enough staff so that we may return to our normal operations.

COURSE EVALUATIONS

Students are expected to provide professional and respectful feedback on the quality of instruction in this course by completing course evaluations online via GatorEvals. Guidance on how to give feedback in a professional and respectful manner is available at <https://gatorevals.aa.ufl.edu/students/>. Students will be notified when the evaluation period opens, and can complete evaluations through the email they receive from GatorEvals, in their Canvas course menu under GatorEvals, or via <https://ufl.bluera.com/ufl/>. Summaries of course evaluation results are available to students at <https://gatorevals.aa.ufl.edu/public-results/>.

TITLE IX AND GENDER EQUITY

Title IX is a federal law that requires officials with the authority to take action, to report violations of the gender equity policy. Officials with authority must report these violations to the Title IX Coordinator or their deputies. The obligation to report applies whenever an Official with Authority receives, in the course and scope of employment, information about the alleged misconduct and policy violation. The report must include all information known to the employee which would be relevant to an investigation or redress of the incident, including whether the alleged victim has expressed a desire for confidentiality. The Office for Accessibility and Gender Equity provides support to anyone affected by sexual or gender-based misconduct, harassment, or discrimination. Please know that your instructor in this course is considered an Official with Authority who is required to report violations of the gender equity policy.

You can also find details of specialist support services at the end of the syllabus. You might not need them, but you might know someone who does.

RECORDING OF CLASS LECTURES

Students are allowed to record video or audio of class lectures. However, the purposes for which these recordings may be used are strictly controlled. The only allowable purposes are (1) for personal educational use, (2) in connection with a complaint to the university, or (3) as evidence in, or in preparation for, a criminal or civil proceeding. All other purposes are prohibited. Specifically, students may not publish recorded lectures without the written consent of the instructor.

A "class lecture" is an educational presentation intended to inform or teach enrolled students about a particular subject, including any instructor-led discussions that form part of the presentation, and delivered by any instructor hired or appointed by the University, or by a guest instructor, as part of a University of Florida course. A class lecture does not include lab sessions, student presentations, clinical presentations such as patient history, academic exercises involving solely student participation, assessments (quizzes, tests, exams), field trips, private conversations between students in the class or between a student and the faculty or lecturer during a class session.

Publication without permission of the instructor is prohibited. To "publish" means to share, transmit, circulate, distribute, or provide access to a recording, regardless of format or medium, to another person (or persons), including but not limited to another student within the same class section. Additionally, a recording, or transcript of a recording, is considered published if it is posted on or uploaded to, in whole or in part, any media platform, including but not limited to social media, book, magazine, newspaper, leaflet, or third party note/tutoring services. A student who publishes a recording without written consent may be subject to a civil cause of action instituted by a person injured by the publication and/or discipline under UF Regulation 4.040 Student Policy on Course Syllabi 3 UF, Academic Affairs, August 5th, 2021 Honor Code and Student Conduct Code.

UNIVERSITY HONESTY POLICY

UF students are bound by The Honor Pledge which states, "We, the members of the University of Florida community, pledge to hold ourselves and our peers to the highest standards of honor and integrity by abiding by the Honor Code. On all work submitted for credit by students at the University of Florida, the following pledge is either required or implied: "On my honor, I have neither given nor received unauthorized aid in doing this assignment." The Honor Code (sccr.dso.ufl.edu/process/student-conduct-code/) specifies a number of behaviors that are in violation of this code and the possible sanctions. Furthermore, you are obligated to report any condition that facilitates academic misconduct to appropriate personnel. If you have any questions or concerns, please consult with the instructor.
